The Daily Press.

HONGKONG, MARCH 16TH, 1874.

We understand that, notwithstanding the address news which we have recently to chronicle from Tongkin, the French have succeeded in obtaining an assent to the signature of the Treaty which they proposed, and which will, if our information is correct, be taken to Paris shortly by Admiral Duroc, for some years past Governor of Saigon, who is to proceed home before long. The news is of considerable importance, as, according to the account of the matter given in the Saigon Independent, to which we have already referred, it appears that the design of the French is to establish a thorough Protectorate, and in fact, though not in form, to annex the country.

No doubt as soon as the matter is known in Europe, it will attract some attention, but probably as nothing has been done up to the present, no particular steps will be taken to prevent the annexation.

It is curious, however, to note the apathy which the English Government manifest in the present day, with regard to all matters in far countries, and especially in reference to its interests in these parts. The Annexation by France of provinces in close proximity to China, is a subject which it might be thought would be considered of sufficient importance to demand some attention, but it does not appear that the English Government have taken any steps with regard to it, and if it be taken up now, the time for any practical action, will, in all likelihood, be passed.

We note this apathy on the part of our Government, not so much in reference to its effects in the present instance, as with regard to the general principles which actuate them at the present time. On the whole, probably it might be a mistake to oppose France, as she is not illiberal in her trading policy, and the likelihood is, that the opening of Tongkin would be beneficial to our interests in Hongkong and China. The time is now passing away when the intense international jealousy which, in former days, often went little short of making one nation look upon any advantage gained by another as a positive detriment to themselves. Larger views are now prevalent, and we do not see any necessary cause to fear the results of another nation doing something in the direction of furthering foreign progress in distant countries, as well as ourselves. It may possibly turn out that what has been done by France will be to the benefit of foreign nations generally, and we have no desire to anticipate events by saying anything which may lead to a contrary conclusion. But the point which is suggested by this matter is, that if this prove to be the case, we shall not have to thank the foreigner, but the supply of the Home Government for the result. If the contrary were the case, and the annexation proved disadvantageous, the Home Government would be in precisely the same position, namely, that they had simply allowed the matter to go, as it were, by default, and had neither ascertained all the requisite facts, nor shaped to themselves any definite policy on the subject. We can only hope for the best; but, if the matter is not quite concluded, would urge upon the Governments of foreign countries interested in these parts, some action in regard to it. Joint action on the part of Great Britain, the United States, and Germany, as the nations chiefly interested in trade in these parts, would probably serve to elucidate the actual state of affairs, and if the annexation has not yet been completed, perhaps the simplest way to test the political situation, would be to demand the right of sending Consuls to Tongkin, and of throwing it open to foreign nations on a basis similar to that existing in China.

By the American mail steamer to leave this day, Lady Kennedy, and Miss Kennedy will take their departure home. They will carry with them some of the most interesting and valuable of the Hongkong Community, and all who have had the pleasure of their acquaintance will long remember the courtesy and kindness which have been shown by them. On their way back, and that of the public, we heartily wish them a safe and pleasant voyage.

From Shanghai, by Cable, we learn that the day, Jan. 1, leaves for this port tomorrow, the 17th instant.

Inter-advice inform us of the arrival of the "Ward of the Fish," from the Hon. H. B. Dymally, in Bombay, and his intention of visiting China shortly.

The return of animals in Victoria Gorge and given in Saturday's Gazette. They show an average of about 360—which is a considerable diminution on previous returns.

We are requested to state that, in consequence of Wednesday being a public day, the Chief Justice will open the Criminal Sessions on Thursday, the 19th instant, instead of on that day.

We hear that the first prize of the Manila Lottery of this month fell to a gentleman at Macao, by the name of Mr. Antonio Tingo. The lucky winner is said to be worth about $100,000. José Billings says—Money brings money.

His Excellency Mr. Wade is going home, it is reported, about the 15th inst. The Hon. H. B. Dymally, Secretary of the Hon. H. B. Dymally, Minister's private secretary, were expected to leave the capital on the 1st instant for England, leaving by America.

Through favourable advice have been received from Shanghai, in the way of more business doing in the Opium market, also from India regarding the crop for next year. They have had very little or no speculation existing here now—also from the natives having bought a lot after the arrival of the Calcutta steamer, and intending to go to the market.

The market there remains quiet with little enquiry at $382½ to $383 for New Patan, and $382½ to $383 for New Patan.

MADAME GODDARD'S SECOND CONCERT.

Madame Goddard's second concert, on Saturday evening, went off with much success. The programme was in every respect well selected, the proportion of classical and popular music being judiciously adjusted to meet the general taste. The first solo given by Madame Goddard was Mozart's Sonata in A, which was accompanied by charming themes, and is carried out in its variations. Variation No. 3, we must notice in particular, this brilliant movement being magnificently rendered by the Artist, every note of the triplet movement coming out with superb distinctness. The other variations, as well as the minuet and trio, were played with the taste and feeling for which Madame Goddard is so much celebrated. The Rondo in A-Turco was played with a brilliancy and spirit, which quite electrified the audience.

The Grand Fantasia from Don Giovanni, arranged expressly for the performer, commenced with a pleasing introduction leading to "Dai vieni alla finestra" the ever popular serenade—one of the most lovely airs in the opera. Commencing with this theme, which was played with the utmost delicacy and lightness, it passed on to a most brilliant variation with uninterrupted scale movement throughout the piano, the melody being sustained as the wind by alternate hands. This was followed by an octave variation for the right hand, which was something marvellous, considering the quickness of the time. The piece was rapidly executed, and Madame Goddard gave in response a charming little waltz by Gungl, which was very well received. The last piece by the Pianiste was a very brilliant Fantasia on her by Sir John Bennett. It produced a great effect, and Madame Goddard was loudly and enthusiastically applauded.

The market there remains quiet with little enquiry at $382½ to $383 for New Patan, and $382½ to $383 for New Patan.

101ST DAY.—19TH JANUARY, 1874.

A black and white photograph showing a dark, heavily textured surface, possibly a wall or a large object. The texture is composed of many small, irregular, light-colored specks and fibers against a dark background. In the upper right corner, there is a bright, circular light source, possibly a lamp or a window, which creates a strong glare and illuminates the surrounding area. The overall composition is abstract and focuses on texture and light.

This image is a high-contrast, black and white scan of a textured surface. The majority of the frame is filled with a dense, granular pattern of light and dark pixels, resembling a wall of small stones or a highly textured material. In the lower right corner, there is a prominent, dark, irregular shape that appears to be a shadow or a large, dark object. The overall image is very noisy and has a high level of contrast, making it difficult to discern specific details.
